From the Past

More notes from the injured editor

Those of you getting bored with my weekly rant about living with a cast and hoping around on crutches will be glad to know that it's coming off in just under two weeks. So sooner or later the February month of grace will be over and you will have to start looking over your collective shoulders when you are getting up to no good in Kalico.

That is if anyone is getting up to no good. After a week of half term with a resort full of horny posh teenage girls and no stories involving the skidoo hut. My apologies to anyone who I haven't seen over the past couple of weeks. Currently my range is limited to the anywhere which is not incline challenged and mostly ice/snow free, which thanks to this current front of clement weather includes the Jump and sometimes, if my arms can support me long enough, the ISBA. Which bring me to the subject of staircases. Staircases are added to my list of challenging transportation devices. I know no one is credited with inventing stairs but whoever did didn't try descending on one leg with crutches. It's a challenge that I don't fall head first in either direction. For the next few weeks people should install more lifts and escalators. I now know why the daleks failed in their bid for world domination.

Valentines day

Well Valentines days came and went with nothing sizable to show for it, not even a restraining order. But after talking to a selection of people around resort I wasn't alone. Come to think about it I wasn't alone being alone. And the best example of a romantic gesture I could find was a Valentine's text message. Probably something like "I lve u" Seriously! What ever happened to romance? Taking your girlfriend out to dinner? Sharing a bottle of Champagne? Introducing a bottle of squirry cream into the bedroom?

I know that Valentine's day is very over commercialised and Hallmark/ Chocolatiers/ Florists make a obscene profit. I know if you are in a relationship you should show that sort of affection on a regular basis instead of waiting for one day out of 365.

THE SURGEON GENERAL WARNS

Doing ski seasons can be highly addictive, can seriously damage your sanity, result in a general lack of sleep, makes your arse bigger, increase the chances of getting a blow job in the skidoo hut outside Kalico and waking up next to a complete stranger.

THE MR MEN ARE BACK

The only foreign sounding character is the new Mr Rude who has a French accent. To prevent offending our cheese eating surrender monkey neighbours the makers of the series defended the move saying "It's a kids comedy, It's not meant to be offensive or anything like that."

Injuries of the week

Simon Hooper is wondering how long it will be before he loses one of his accident prone staff permanently. Greg(Ski Higher) back-flipped his way down to Moutier again after the nose of board dug into the snow. Luckily he escaped serious injury.

Sammy G was slightly more unlucky with his back flip attempt which resulted in a dislocated shoulder.

Rowena (Neilson) managed to break her neck after suffering bad whiplash while being shunted from behind in a car accident.

JAMES says*

"If you don't wear the right ski socks you won't get laid?"

WHY? Because he's a BASI ski instructor and he has the id card to prove it.

**The enquirer doesn't support or condone anything that James says.*

Following last weeks abuse of the sexuality of George's upper lip topiary, visitors to the Jump bar will see a more cleanly shaven version behind the bar. You see George has been on the receiving end of a promotion from the lowly role of whiskers clad rubber glove wearing plongeur in the kitchen to a more customer orientated position of barman.
